WUSD seeks to buy homes near high school site

■ District officials yet to decide whether to use 'eminent domain' to force homeowners to sell their property

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

West Sacramento's school board members plan to revisit the district's "goals and visions" in order to form a strategic overview. The board had planned a pair of meetings today and tomorrow to cover the topic, but a scheduling conflict led to an announcement yesterday that the meetings would be postponed.

In 2004 -- with three of the five board seats held by other people -- the Washington Unified School District trustees began the discussion on "goals and visions." They agreed that the first priority of the district would be construction of a new high school to replace aging River City High.

"If I recall correctly, one of the other top goals was changing the delivery of our educational programs," said board president Dave Farmer yesterday. "We have to talk about what changes are coming in the future, and how our current educational system will need to be changed. Instead of a comprehensive high school, we're looking at different ways of delivering education to kids who are not all college-bound. We're looking at 'small learning communities' (at the new high school), vocational training -- we want to develop programs that meet all the kids' needs. Not just those going to a four-year college, but kids who have other goals, such as auto mechanics, for example."

A district spokesperson said yesterday that new dates for the "goals and visions" workshop have not yet been set.

Along with Farmer (a police lieutenant), the current school board includes Kevin Jones (teacher) and new members Barry Kalar (retired police chief), Mary Leland (administrator) and Dave Westin (businessman).

A showcase for the past

Something new to celebrate something old:

This Sunday marks a couple of firsts for West Sacramento, as the city's historical society opens a combination museum and visitor's society at a storefront in the Washington neighborhood. From 2 to 4 p.m., the public is welcome to attend the ribbon-cutting and grand opening of the two facilities at 324 Third Street, north of the "ziggurat" building and close to the I Street Bridge.

Both the museum and visitor's center will be staffed by volunteers. Exhibits from the West Sacramento Historical Society will include photos of the city's past along with a bunch of memorabilia arrayed in the two-room facility.

Yesterday, a lot of the exhibits were in place -- but there remained a lot of work to be done before Sunday's opening.

"We will have a little classroom with some old school artifacts," said Jeri Wingfield, exhibit chairperson. "We have a model boat built about 100 years ago of the 'Lawrence,' and it's going to be the centerpiece of the museum. It's a Gold Rush-era model of the steamboat Lawrence, which was the seventh steamboat to arrive in California. It ran on the San Joaquin River, the Feather River and it's supposed to have run on the Sacramento River."

LANA PAULHAMUS next to an antique model of an old, local steamboat -- one of the artifacts visitors will see when West Sacramento's first history museum opens its doors this Sunday

Lana Paulhamus, a historical society volunteer working to get things ready on Monday, said that the boat "symbolizes what West Sacramento is about." She pointed at a nearby mural -- also on display at the museum -- that showed the city's old riverfront and shipping activities in 1909.

Also in the museum:

"We have a player piano and a little 'living room' set up to celebrate the Victorian homes in the area," said Wingfield. "And we have a section on agriculture and commerce, and on churches in the area, and on firefighting history. We have a display of 'unburied treasures -- bottles and things dug up, I believe, from the Broderick dump.

The historical society had tried to land the former Washington Firehouse -- a 1940-era Art Deco building across the street -- for its new museum. It had negotiated with the city for the site, which it planned to share with an art center.

"That was a tragedy," said Jeri Wingfield. "The city asked us to work with the River Valley Art Center to come up with an art, history and visitor's center that was really swank. But I've been told that Leonard Development, with a project going in across the street from the new Washington Square project, needed a bunch of parking spaces, and the city said we needed to give up parking spaces from the firehouse. The art center had planned to give classes and so forth, and needed the parking, so they pulled out."

On the other hand, said Wingfield, the city has come through with money from a grant to pay for three years of leasing the their current space across from the firehouse.

The museum and visitor's center will be open for business beginning next week, on Thursdays and Fridays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and on weekends from noon to 5 p.m.

Police, D.A.'s office unveil injunction against gang

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

The Yolo County District Attorney's office joined the West Sacramento Police Department last Wednesday to announce, at a city press conference, that they were pulling out new tools to deal with the "Broderick Boys" gang based in the city's north area.

A Yolo County judge has signed a "permanent gang injunction" against the Broderick Boys (Norteno) street gang, prohibiting documented members of the gang from engaging in some behaviors that for other people would not be considered criminal.

In a written statement, Deputy District Attorney Jeff Reisig said that the gang was prohibiting citizens' from being able to "comfortably enjoy their life and property."

"It was this harsh reality that triggered the Yolo County District Attorney's Office and the West Sacramento Police Department to seek a gang injunction against the Broderick Boys (Norteno) criminal street gang to abate this public notice."

The gang is alleged to be the largest in the county.

The injunction prohibits gang members inside a "Safety Zone" in the city's north from associating with each other in public, from engaging in graffiti or carrying graffiti tools, from involvement with drugs or alcohol, from weapons and witness intimidation, and from trespassing. It also dictates a curfew for gang members, prohibiting them from public areas between 10 p.m. and sunrise.

Penalties include six months in jail or $1,000.

Reisig said the injunction gives gang members "a reason to leave the gang."

Also involved in the new program is West Sacramento Police Chief Dan Drummond.

On neighbors being 'unable to enjoy their lives and property':

Yolo Co. Deputy District Attorney

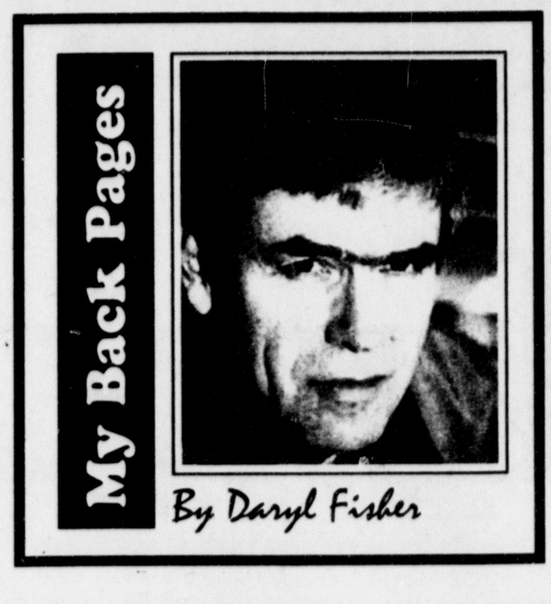
The city's mayor, Christopher Cabaldon, said yesterday that the city will use other tools as well to fight the gang problem.

"These young people are part of local families and we have to deal with that in its totality, and not just lock up half the population," said Cabaldon. "We've asked the chief of police to work with the school district, social services and the community college to work on a full suite of services for these young people to fight this problem."

Cabaldon added that the chief and the district attorney's office have studied gang injunctions in other places to craft this legal action "as tightly as possible" so that civil liberties aren't taken away.

"Earlier implementations of this approach in big cities have caused a lot of civil liberties issues to be raised about criminalizing otherwise non-criminal behavior," he commented.

Sleeping at work, Hollywood Squares & more



Below you will find some more "humor nuggets" recently passed along to me by readers of this column. And as always, they are very much appreciated.

Some clever things to say when your boss catches you sleeping at your desk:

1. "They told me at the blood bank this might happen."
2. "Whew! I guess I left the top off of the Whiteout bottle. You probably got here just in time."
3. "This is just that 15 minute power nap they've been raving about in all those time management courses that are so popular now for people like me who really want to get ahead."
4. "I wasn't sleeping. I was just meditating on our mission statement and trying to mentally envision a new business strategy."
5. "I was just doing a highly specific Yoga exercise to relieve work related stress. You are familiar with Yoga and all its stress relieving benefits, aren't you?"
6. "Do you ever notice funny sounds coming out of these keyboards when you put you ear down really close to them?"
7. And without a doubt, the number one best thing to do and say if your boss catches you sleeping at you desk is: Raise you head very slowly and say, "In Jesus' name, Amen."

If you remember the old original Hollywood Squares, hosted by Peter Marshall and featuring such great comics as Paul Lynde, George Gobel and Charley Weaver, you will enjoy the following:

Q. If you're going to make a parachute jump, at least how high should you be?
A. Charley Weaver: Three days of steady drinking should just about do it.
Q. Do female frogs croak?
A. Paul Lynde: If you hold their little heads under water long enough they do.
Q. True or False, a pea can last as long as 5,000 years.
A. George Gobel: Boy, it sure feels that way sometimes.
Q. According to Cosmo magazine, if you meet a stranger at a party and you think that he is attractive, is it okay to come out and ask him if he's married.
A. Rose Marie: No, I think it's best to wait until morning.
Q. Which of your senses tends to diminish the quickest as you get older?
A. Charley Weaver: My sense of decency.
Q. In Hawaiian, does it take more than three words to say "I Love You?"
A. Vincent Price: No, you can say it with a pineapple and a twenty.
Q. Why do Hell's Angels wear leather?
A. Paul Lynde: Because chiffon wrinkles too easily.
Q. You've just decided to grow strawberries. Are you going to get any the first year?
A. Charley Weaver: Of course not -- you're going to be too busy growing strawberries.
Q. In bowling, what is a perfect score?
A. Rose Marie: Ralph, the cute pin boy where I bowl.
Q. Can boys join the Camp Fire Girls?
A. Marty Allen: Only after lights out.
Q. According to Ann Landers, is there anything wrong with getting into the habit of kissing a lot of people?
A. Charley Weaver: No, it got me out of the army.
Q. While visiting China, your tour guide starts shouting, "Poo! Poo! Poo!" What does this mean?
A. George Gobel: Cattle crossing.
Q. Back in the old days, when great grandpa put horseradish on his head, what was he trying to do?
A. George Gobel: Get it in his mouth.
Q. When you pat a dog on its head he will wag his tail. What will a goose do?
A. Paul Lynde: It will make him bark.

You know you're living in the 21st century when...

1. You haven't played solitaire with real cards in years.
2. You have at least 15 different phone numbers to reach your family of three.
3. You email the person who works at the desk next to you.
4. You've sat at the same desk for four years and worked for three different companies.
5. Your boss doesn't have the ability to do your job.
6. Leaving the house without your cell phone is now a cause for panic.

And finally, a few medical definitions:

Cauterize -- making eye contact with a woman.
Fester -- quicker than someone else.
Fibula -- a small lie.
G.I. Series -- the World Series of military baseball.
Impotent -- distinguished, well known.
Labor pain -- getting hurt at work.

'The rest of the story'

DRE Lic. #01010462

Why you would create an 'impound account'

When you want to have your taxes and insurance part of your monthly payment, how does that work? Well you have to first have to determine what is going to be included in your "impounds", (traditionally they are comprised of your property taxes, home owners insurance, and maybe principle mortgage insurance; PMI).

Always your taxes and insurance are paid forward, so you are insured they are paid in advance. Your property taxes are paid twice a year, (Dec., and April), and your homeowners insurance is paid annually. So when we create your impound account we are doing just that, "creating." We have to calculate what your property taxes are, divide by twelve, and then impound for the rest of the months until your next tax bill is due. Depending on the month that you close escrow is significant because each month of the year poses a different "impounding" amount. Your home owners insurance is paid annually, so typically what happens is your old insurance is prorated to the date we close escrow, you then pay the full amount of the new premium, then you add about two months or extra reserves into the impound account. PMI works in many ways the same as homeowners insurance.

So when you refinance or purchase a home, and you are creating an impound account, just remember that you are paying forward all your accounts so that there is always enough to cover your taxes and insurance. At the end of the year, however, most lenders audit all there impound accounts on behalf of all their clients and reconcile their books. In some cases you can be entitled to a refund of overpayment of impounds. Use extreme caution when you get this check. Call your lender right away -- sometimes a lender has sent a refund, then called the next month saying they must raise your impound amount. Usually this happens when either your taxes or your homeowners insurance has increased.

Twilight of the Loners

They are lone gunmen, holed up and waiting for a final stand against opponents who possess too many weapons to be beaten.

Ultimately, their loner way of life, dominant in a bygone era, has about vanished, swept away by the modern key words of "change" and "progress."

The background for this scene is NASCAR, and those facing extinction are known as single-car teams.

If you want to follow an interesting subplot beyond the Chase for the Nextel Cup and who makes the 10 "playoff" races, then it might be worth your time to observe those drivers whose teams consist of a single car. Their successes are few and far between, and their life span in NASCAR is shrinking.

One-car teams were once the norm in the sport — which forged its early reputation on independent Southern racers — until the mid-1980s, when the shift toward multicar teams started gaining some traction. The last season championship by a single-car team came via Alan Kulwicki in 1992. By the 1998 season, seven of the 11 race winners came from multicar teams, and in the next two years there was not one single-car race winner. The shift was complete.

Of course, multicar teams make sense in the era of growth that NASCAR has enjoyed in recent years. The teams can share research on designs and setups among their cars, as well as divvy up the costs. It makes for a more efficient operation, an extremely important factor in that the cost of doing business in NASCAR hasn't gotten any cheaper. Also, during a race, one driver can help draft for another or provide other aid, possibly meaning more victories for the team and more benefits for the sponsors, who provide the financial lifeblood for NASCAR.

And above all that, who wouldn't want a team with both a Jeff Gordon AND a Jimmie Johnson, an advantage Hendrick Motorsports currently enjoys?

It's all about getting the most out of the resources available, which is why such entities as Hendrick, Dale Earnhardt Inc., Joe Gibbs Racing, Roush Racing and others exist. They are now the norm these days.

But don't forget about single-car drivers like Ricky Rudd, Robby Gordon, Bobby Hamilton Jr. and Ken Schrader. They represent something, too, and when their kind vanishes, something will have been lost in the river of green that fuels sports these days.

A Conversation With Corbin Bernsen

Back when Corbin Bernsen was playing bed-hopping barrister Arnie Becker on "L.A. Law," he told me, "One of the great things about being on a hit television series is that people (in the business) get to know you, and you get to know them."

Over the years, Bernsen has met a lot of Hollywood-honcho types who have come to appreciate him as an actor who never fails to turn in a solid performance, and as a result, the offers keep coming in, both for television (a recurring role on "JAG," for one, and guest stints on "The West Wing," etc.) as well as features such as the three "Major League" flicks, "Hello Again," "Shattered," "Kiss Kiss Bang Bang" etc., etc. Currently, Bernsen is also starring on the daytime drama "General Hospital" as the mysterious John Durant.

"Jag"
CBS (recurring)
"General Hospital"
ABC Daytime

Meanwhile, Bernsen began to expand his career from performer to producer. During a chat we had last summer, he told me, "I feel that, as an actor, I've had a lot of good stuff to work with. And I like the fact that it's been a varied (offering). ... But as much as I love acting, I also love being behind the scenes. I like being able to create projects that come out of my vision. And that's why I started my own company, Public Media Works, so that I can work with some of the best talent around who can make that happen."

Besides the creative team he's gathered around him at Public Media Works (writers, set designers, et al.), Bernsen plans to use actors from both prime time and daytime. When we talked, we agreed that too often actors known mostly for soap work are overlooked when producers are casting for their films and nighttime shows.

"And that's unfortunate," Bernsen says. "These people have the training, the experience and the talent you want for your projects. Not to mention the discipline."

Bernsen — whose daytime background also includes "Ryan's Hope" and, more recently, a run on "The Young and The Restless," on which his mother, Jeanne Cooper, has been working for more than 30 years — adds, "When you're doing a soap, you are expected to come on the set knowing your lines, and delivering them as if you've had several takes to get them just right, although you never get a chance to do it more than once."

One of the film projects Bernsen has wrapped for Public Media Works is "Carpool Guy," a black-comedy feature starring several actors currently on soaps, including "General Hospital's" Anthony Geary, Patrika Darbo of "Days of Our Lives" and, of course, his mom, Jeanne Cooper. ("She's my good-luck charm. Whenever she's in a film or on a show with me, it turns out to be a winner.")

The film is about climbing the corporate ladder in Los Angeles, where your life and your ambition often depend on where you are on a freeway at any given moment.

Bernsen, who not only stars in the flick, but also directs it, says, "I've lived in New York, London and other cities, and believe me, none of them has the unique car culture of Los Angeles, where people are born in cars, live in cars and sometimes die in cars."

Coming up for Bernsen's company is a series of interactive television projects, with several already green-lighted for production this year.

"You always hear people say what they would have liked to see in a film or television show, and we now have the technology to make that happen," Corbin Bernsen says.

• "Purchase a brightly colored garbage can to corral outdoor toys in the yard. You can get them in red or bright blue these days, so they'll stand out from the regular trash can and you won't get confused. They work great to hold balls and even small riding toys for toddlers. It helps to keep the yard straightened up." — R.R. in Florida

When your house gets too big:
As the Baby Boomers send their kids to college and become 'empty nesters,' they no longer need six bedrooms, three baths, a family room and huge yard. Many trade the family home for something smaller, easier to maintain and with better amenities.
If you're considering such a move, consult a Realtor you like and trust. Consider the tax laws of 1997 which allow capital gain exclusions whether you 'buy up' to a more expensive home or 'buy down' to a less expensive one. If you're moving downtown from the suburbs to be closer to culture, theaters and restaurants, consider quality-of-life issues such as noise or parking. Your Realtor can help you find a home with the amenities you desire.

LETTERS from p. 7

tention you (and the staff you inspired) expended in what must have seemed like an unending search for the magic bullet solution for his difficulties at school, but for the cheerful, courteous and caring manner with which you daily carried out what you believed to be your task. To wit: Finding a way to reach not only him, but every other student in your charge as well, by every and any means practicable at your disposal. You did this with an encouraging smile; always ready to meet a concerned parent in an impromptu manner, without giving the parent the feeling that they were intruding on your precious time. Believe me, that alone is too rare a commodity in the now twelve years of experience I've had as a consumer of school services, and one to be cherished. I'm aware of the financial cost the school incurred when you put him on a personal home-study with you, and that is, to me, further and admirable proof of your willingness to put the needs of the child ahead of the bureaucratic bean-counters downtown. They (the children) are, after all, the most important thing in life that we do. Good luck and godspeed to you sir.

With friends like these

West Sacramento, Sacramento (city and county), and Yolo, along with their jointly-run Port of Sacramento governing board, last year hired some consultants to try to finally get to the truth about the port. The port, based in West Sacramento, has suffered from declining revenues and deferred maintenance for years. It is losing more than a million dollars per year, by anyone's bookkeeping.

What are the port's prospects as a maritime facility, considering the competition in Stockton, Oakland and elsewhere? What needs to be done to improve the Port of Sacramento's competitiveness as a port, and just how much financial success will these investments bring? What's the best way to use all the port's undeveloped land, with an eye both towards being a good neighbor to West Sacramento and to raising revenue for the port? These are the kinds of questions the consultants have been asked.

And some of their answers have been clear:

The present program isn't working and without major change, the port will consider to lose money. That money that will have to come from somewhere. Major improvements such as channel-deepening will be expensive, and that money will have to come from somewhere. The years spent in the mean time, awaiting improvements such as deepening the channel will see more financial losses, and that money will have to come from somewhere. The port has plenty of land to expand its maritime operations on the north side of the barge canal, next to existing terminals, and does not need to hold onto its Southport property for maritime development. No "ifs," "ands" or "buts" about these conclusions.

And the consultants added that if some of the port's land in Southport continues to be slated for heavy industry, that will depress the value of land next door – including the port's own acreage. Plus, said the consultants, industrial land south of the barge canal will be slow to sell or lease, because its distance from the freeway puts it at a competitive disadvantage to other industrial land in the Sacramento region. That fact will cause a hardship if the port intends to rely on real estate development to help make ends meet in the next few years. Again – no equivocation on this point from the consultants.

A lot of this is grist for "I told you so" refrains from those who have questioned the port's plans for the past 15 years or more. But that's another story.

The immediate problem is that both the port's labor unions and some members of the port's governing commission continue to fight the obvious, pushing to set aside as much of the port's real estate as possible for use as an industrial and maritime center, including southern land. Years of experience and the new report from the port's own consultants say that strategy won't work – and that this plan would, in fact, hamstring the port's economic development.

Ironically, this strategy of maximizing the port's shipping expansion is the plan most likely to kill the port by bleeding it to death. Other real estate strategies stand a better chance of bringing in the money that is needed to subsidize shipping at the Port of Sacramento.

The port's best friends, it seems, may be its own worst enemies. If organized labor and its friends insist on the most expensive and unworkable option, then they also need to come up with a plan for who they think will pay for it.

We need to fast-forward a bit, past the politics and special interests, and examine the carrying costs of the Port of Sacramento as well as the costs of eventually fixing it up. We need to, finally, start to talk about what it will cost to fund various plans to reinvent the Port of Sacramento, what those investments will bring in return. Then we need to talk about who is going to come up with those millions. Then we will have finally had the discussion that should have taken place a decade or two ago.

Letters to the Editor

Appreciative of WSPD

I am writing this letter to express my thanks for the wonderful service I received from Officer Robin Reese last week. She responded to a call regarding a stranger who was in my neighborhood. She was professional and kind. Although it turned out he was a solicitor who had been loitering in our neighborhood for a couple of hours, and not a major threat to our safety, Officer Reese was very understanding.

I have appreciated the incredible service from the West Sacramento Police Department since I moved here four years ago. I have found the community meetings very helpful in demonstrating to the public how friendly and accessible the police force is in West Sacramento. I have called the department several times and am always treated courteously and promptly.

We wish to thank the teachers and students at Evergreen Elementary School for picking up litter on the school grounds this past February 10th. This is where it begins, at an early age, in caring for our community and the environment. These students set a good example for all of us to follow.

"Hide and Seek"

Running time: 105 minutes
MPAA rating: R

This movie should've stayed hidden.

Honestly, did we really need to see another slow-paced, alleged "thriller" about a house where people die and the prime suspect is a Creepy Kid? And let's not even talk about the laughable "twist" ending that you can see coming from a mile away.

"Hide and Seek" is slow, poorly written and tries to invokes the spirit of Stanley Kubrick, "The Grudge" and "The Sixth Sense," but doesn't deliver the goods. Worst of all, it takes a stellar cast and wastes their talent and our time.

For the umpteenth time this past decade, Robert De Niro phones-in his performance, this time as David Callaway, a successful psychologist whose wife commits suicide. David and his 10-year-old daughter Emily (Dakota Fanning) discover the bloody body in the bathtub.

David decides to move to a house in upstate New York to tend to his distraught daughter, who has begun to dress and look like Wednesday Addams and who speaks about an imaginary friend named Charlie. David suspects and fears that his daughter may have a split personality and be responsible for his wife's death.

Soon, dolls become mutilated, a family pet meets an unfortunate end and then there's the most frightening part of the movie: De Niro's character hooking up with Elisabeth Shue. If watching a fossil like De Niro try to get his freak on with a young hottie like Shue doesn't have you reaching for a barf bag, I don't know what will.

I've already mentioned the laughable twist ending, so the less said about it — and this film — the better.

Dakota Fanning, Robert De Niro

The only redeeming aspect of "Hide and Seek" is the performance by Dakota Fanning. For a girl so young, she displays a maturity beyond her years, and her work in this picture upstages even De Niro's.

However, it's not enough for me to recommend you see this horrible movie.

Q. I love Teri Hatcher's performance on "Desperate Housewives," and I would say she's come a long way since playing Lois Lane on "Lois and Clark." My question is, is it true that she would like to have her ("Lois and Clark") co-star, Dean Cain, come on her new show? I heard this on the radio while I was driving, but I haven't seen or heard anything more on this. — *Lili W.

A. It does sound like a good idea. But so far there's been no comment from ABC on whether Cain would appear on the show.

Q. How many times has Britney Spears actually been married? And was Justin Timberlake one of her husbands? I've heard different numbers, and I thought I would check with you for the right one. — *Thea H.

Q. I would like to know if Britney Spears maneuvered to get the spot on the Mickey Mouse Club that should have gone to ("Newlyweds") Jessica Simpson. What's the real story here? — *Deborah C.

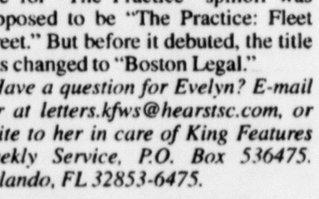
A. To Thea: Thanks for the vote of confidence. First, Spears and Timberlake — both of whom are Mickey Mouse Club alumni — dated, but were never married. Second, Spears went through two marriage ceremonies, but has only married once. To explain: She traded "I do's" with Kevin Federline on Sept. 18, 2004, and that marriage remains valid. She also traveled the bridal path with Jason Allen Alexander on Jan. 3, 2004. Two days later her lawyer had the splicing annulled, which, under the law, means it never existed.

A. To Deborah: The real story is that Spears tried out for the Mickey Mouse Club at age 8, but was turned down because she was too young and was told to come back later.



Teri Hatcher

After a nearly three-year run in a highly praised performance in the off-Broadway play "Ruthless," she once again auditioned to fill an empty slot in the MMC cast and impressed everyone. However, it was expected that Jessica Simpson would get the job. But for some reason, Simpson was unable to finish the audition process, and it went to Spears.

Q. On "Lost," who plays the character of Jack, and why does he look so familiar? — *Don J.

A. Jack is played by Matthew Fox, whom you may have previously seen in the series "Party of Five."

Q. Whatever happened to the series ABC was supposed to do with (former "The Practice" star) James Spader? — *Trudy R.

A. It's on the air right now. The first, but apparently tentative, title for "The Practice" spinoff was supposed to be "The Practice: Fleet Street." But before it debuted, the title was changed to "Boston Legal."

ONIONS ARE A COOKING ESSENTIAL

What would food be without onions? This is a product that has been filling the culinary needs of every thinking cook from the homemaker to the master chef. Without a member of the onion family, some dishes would be flat and insipid. What's more alluring than the scent of diced onions, celery and green pepper sautéing in olive oil or butter, the base of so many recipes?

Aside from their recognition as a flavor booster, onions enjoy a reputation for their nutritive value. Low in calories and sodium, they provide some calcium, folic acid, potassium and selenium, vitamin C, and a fair amount of vitamin A and the B vitamins. They also contain quercetin, which may be helpful in guarding against cataracts, cardiovascular disease and certain cancers. Incidentally, quercetin is unaffected by chopping, but some studies show that when boiled for 60 minutes, its value was reduced by 20 percent.

Whether used in simple everyday dishes, culinary triumphs, or raw in salads or sandwiches, onions are indispensable.

For a unique go-with for meat, poultry or fish, present onions on their own. Try roasted whole yellows dressed with an herby butter sauce: While roasting 4 peeled medium whole yellows, gather the leaves of washed fresh herbs, such as sage, marjoram, oregano or thyme, to make a packed 1/4 cup. In a small skillet, melt 1/4 cup butter. Add the herbs. Cook, stirring over medium heat until butter begins to brown and herbs are crisp. Do not allow butter or herbs to burn. When onions are soft, remove from oven, cut onions in half and pour on herb butter. Makes 8 servings.

Large onions are ideal vehicles for fillings, such as this medley of vegetables nestled in hollowed-out yellows, an ideal vegetarian dish, or halved for a tasty side dish.

VEGETABLE MEDLEY IN ONION CUPS

- 4 large yellow onions (9 to 11 ounces each)
- 2 teaspoons olive oil
- 1 pound yellow summer squash, cut in julienne strips
- 1/2 pound mushrooms, sliced
- 3 ribs celery, sliced
- 1 red bell pepper, sliced
- 1 clove garlic, thinly sliced, optional
- 2 medium tomatoes, cubed
- 1/3 cup minced Italian (flat leaf) parsley
- 1/2 teaspoon dried tarragon, crushed
- 1 cup white wine, or chicken or vegetable broth

Peel onions; cut flat slice off base of each onion, leaving root base intact so they will stand upright. Hollow out onions, leaving 1/2-inch shells. Chop onion removed from centers. Place onion shells in large skillet; add 1 inch water, cover and bring to boil. Reduce heat and simmer gently 25 minutes or until tender. Remove onions from skillet with slotted spoon and drain; keep warm. Empty skillet; add oil and heat. Add chopped onion, squash, mushrooms, celery, red pepper and garlic; sauté over medium heat until tender-crisp, 6 to 8 minutes. Add tomatoes, parsley, tarragon and wine; cook 2 minutes longer. Nestle onion shells into serving dish and fill with vegetable mixture. Makes 4 servings.

Books

The Bowl Is Already Broken
by Mary Kay Zuravleff
(Farrar, Straus and Giroux, $25)
Reviewed by Ealish Waddell

Though located in the museum heart of Washington, D.C., The Museum of Asian Art is in trouble. Scant visitors and misplaced patriotism have inspired an unsympathetic management to convert the building into a food court. The beloved longtime director has suddenly retired to travel to a remote dig in China — and promptly goes missing. His replacement, feisty Promise Whittaker, tries to keep the museum alive while juggling her active family — which includes one more on the way.

One curator will go to any lengths to conceive a son, even if it means embezzling from the institution to fund her fertility treatments. Another clearly has mysterious plans of his own that he intends to share with no one. And one just dropped the museum's newest million-dollar acquisition, an exquisite ceramic bowl, right down the front stairs.

Though The Museum of Asian Art is fictional, "The Bowl Is Already Broken" is written by a Smithsonian veteran who offers a spirited, behind-the-scenes look at a major museum and the politics and passions that drive its inner workings. Yet the novel is also an intriguing character study, packed with distinct personalities with motivations both personal and scholarly.

The book reminds us that by preserving some of the world's greatest achievements in art (as well as the remains of everyday life), museums stand as testaments to human creativity, diversity and experience. However, it also touches on the danger of becoming too attached to such physical reminders. Nothing, no matter how well it is taken care of, lasts forever.

As in the proverb to which the title refers, in the full experience of something beautiful there is always the underlying element of risk and loss — whether it be in life, love or a ceramic bowl.

Water Works System Is Being Installed in Westgate To Furnish Every Home in the District

Under the direction of the West Sacramento Company a six-inch pump is being installed over the well that was lately dug to a depth of 800 feet.

This is the initial step in furnishing a big supply of water to every home and every factory in the district.

The pump is a product of the Layne & Bowler factory and is capable of pumping 800 gallons of water a minute.

The system will consist of a high pressure tank that will give a pressure of forty pounds per square inch all the time. No storage tank will be used because the plant is so constructed that in case of necessity the pressure can be increased to sixty pounds per square inch.

Immediately following the installation of the pump and motor the work of clearing out the well will be started so that when the mains are laid to every section of the district an absolutely clear supply of very good water will be available to residents and home owners of the district.

The Westgate Realty Company and McAnulty Brothers estimate that this pump will be capable of supplying the district with all necessary water for several years to come.

The pump is of the automatic type, allowing it to maintain a regular pressure all the time.

The Pacific Gas & Electric Company has a force of men now extending the power line to the pump and a contract has been let to lay the water mains on every street of the district.

APPRAISERS APPOINTED FOR STATE HIGHWAY RIGHTS OF WAY

George Artz, Ben Leonard and J. C. Carly have been appointed by the state highway commission to appraise rights of way for the highway that is about to be built from the state highway in West Sacramento to the M street bridge.

This portion of the state highway will connect with the finished road in West Sacramento and will run through a new subway that is about to be built under the Sacramento Northern embankment at a point about five hundred feet west of the present subway. From the new subway it will run easterly along the Sacramento Northern right of way, taking parts of the Lowrence, Marty and O'Connor and Harbinson properties.

The right of way over the land owned by the West Sacramento Company south of the embankment is the first to be appraised. The appraisal on the others will come later.

The borrow pit which is north of the railroad embankment will be filled and on top of the fill the roadway will be built.

The northern side of the road will be 160 feet from the center of the embankment.

The property owners affected by the road for rights of way have given the state highway commission their figures but nothing has yet been heard from the commission.

ANOTHER VICTIM OF PROHIBITION SURRENDERS TO THE GRIM REAPER

James Fitzgerald, a young man about thirty-five years of age, was found by Constable Wilson last Monday afternoon in the jungles south of the M street bridge a victom of denatured alcohol.

It seems that Fitzgerald came from San Francisco looking for work in the farms of the Sacramento Valley. Failing to land a job, he sought consolation with men of his kind in cheap intoxicants and after consuming too much of the denatured alcohol purchased in drug stores he wandered across the river from Sacramento to get out of the way of the police.

How long he had lain on the river slope of the levee it is not known for when Constable Wilson found the remains they had been covered with an old blanket by his companions.

Coroner Ross Wilson of Woodland took the remains to Woodland and a jury rendered a verdict of "death from alcoholism."

Fitzgerald's parents were notified in San Francisco and took the remains for burial to their home.

The father is a retired member of the San Francisco fire department and the other children of the family are deeply grieved at the death of a wayward young man.

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS

The Sacramento River registered five feet ten inches, United States gauge at the Southern Pacific bridge yesterday. This is a reduction of about two feet since last week's report and is an indication that from now on low water can be expected in the river.

From the California Crop Reporting Service word comes that gives a tone of encouragement to farmers of this district in the following:

Pasture—The June 1 condition of pasture in California was 99 per cent of a normal as compared with 97 one month ago; 55 on June 1 last year and a 10-year average of 82.

Alfalfa—A slight increase is indicated in the acreage of alfalfa this year when compared with 1924. A preliminary estimate shows 1,021,000 acres—an increase of 20,000 acres the past year. The condition is estimated to be 100 per cent, or a normal crop. This may be compared with 88 per cent of a normal in 1924 and a 10-year average of 92. There was some injury to alfalfa in the swath or shock from the May rains, but quality alone was affected. The rains practically had no influence on the production.

Miss C. I. Romack, graduate of a business college of Sacramento, has been added to the office force of McAnulty Brothers in Westgate. Miss Romack has not been employed steadily but as a substitute for Mrs. Newman, who at the present time is recuperating from the affects of an operation for appendicitis which she underwent in a Sacramento hospital. Mrs. Newman is expected to return to her desk some day next week.

Victor M. Brown, owner of the Brown Cabinet Works in Westgate, met with a serious accident last Tuesday when he suffered the loss of the thumb of his right hand in the planing mill of his shop. Temporarily he is laid up and under the care of a surgeon but is able to superintend the work in the factory. At this writing the cabinet shop is extremely busy owing to the great demand made on it for mill work by the Westgate Realty Company.

McNally & Partridge, at the West Side Auto Camp, installed the fifth gasoline pump on their premises during the past week and are now prepared to offer the best service to their patrons. They carry on hand at all times the products of the five principal gas producers in this section of the state: Shell, Standard, General, Richfield and Union.

Joe Pereira reports that at the West Sacramento Auto Camp business conditions are improving to such an extent that he is forced to turn away patrons every night. Travel by automobile has increased to such an extent that it seems the long lines of autos now touring the highways are simply out on vacation trips.

Before Judge Barry last Wednesday Louis Fat and Lem Shire, two Chinese, appeared after being arrested by C. Hanson and Ed. Cassidy, agents of the State Board of Pharmacy. They were accused of being in possession of a small quantity of opium and pleaded guilty to the charge. Judge Barry promptly assessed them a fine of $50 each, which was as promptly paid. Judge Barry cautioned them, however, that if they appeared in his court again on a similar complaint they would not get off so lightly.

On the same day, Wednesday, John Rayon was arrested by Sheriff Monroe on a charge of vagrancy. He had been hanging around with the Chinese at a point south of the M street bridge and had been repeatedly told by Sheriff Monroe to keep out of there but failed to do so. Judge Barry sent him to Woodland for a period of thirty days to rest up.

Miss Helen Dassonville went to San Francisco yesterday morning to spend a few days with relatives.

Afflicted with tuberculosis, Frank LaChance was taken up yesterday forenoon by Constable Wilson in the jungles south of the M street bridge and taken to Woodland for treatment. The man had been indulging in canned heat and going without having the proper food, his system became so run down that he became a victim of tuberculosis. He had been noticed in the vicinity during the past week but developed a serious sickness yesterday before Constable Wilson was called to take care of him.

Mrs. F. De Riso, Sr., and Mrs. R. Eagan left last Wednesday evening for Salt Lake where they expect to spend a few days with friends and relatives.

Near Kiesel Station yesterday Constable Wilson found a Harley-Davidson motorcycle which had been wrecked to a great extent. One wheel was badly mashed, apparently by coming in contact with an automobile or other vehicle. The motorcycle was registered under the name of H. B. Owen of Oroville, the legal owner being G. A. Hollowell, also of Oroville. The license number was Cal-4-782. Constable Wilson has notified the Oroville authorities to get in touch with the owner.

Near the southern end of the West Sacramento district yesterday Constable Wilson found a Chevrolet automobile partly wrecked. It bore the license Cal-604-028 and was registered under the name of G. A. Johnson, Hammonton, Calif. Constable Wilson ascertained yesterday afternoon from the authorities that this car was stolen in Marysville on Wednesday night about 8 p. m. Evidently the thief intended to go south along the river and sell the car or dispose of it in some way, but at the point mentioned it collided with a pile of lumber that is being used by Percy Hart in making repairs to a dredger. Constable Wilson has notified the authorities in Marysville that the car is at their disposal.

After spending the week-end here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. K. Manchester, Blair Manchester has returned to Oakland.

Miss Ardella Manchester left Tuesday for Tres Pines to spend a two weeks' vacation with relatives.

Mrs. Hollis Simmons of Colusa returned home after a visit at the home of Mrs. Hattie Stewart.

Mrs. Della Knight, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Celia Hart, returned to Oakland Saturday.

Thomas Enright returned home on Saturday from a week's visit at Lake Tahoe.

At the Washington grammar school picnic held Thursday the teachers presented Mrs. I. K. Manchester with a gold fountain pen in appreciation of her efforts as school trustee.

W. J. LEINBERGER ESTATE IS NOW BEING SETTLED

On June 15 there was filed for record in Woodland the following transcript:

William J. Leinberger deceased. To Gus Goldberg an und. ½ int. in Sacramento property and also lot 10s and 11, block 6, and an und. ½ int. in and to lot 8 of Riverbank. To Walter J. Leinberger an und. ½ interest in and to that certain property situated in the town of Washington, known as the Slaughter House Property. Also personal property to other persons.

This would indicate that the estate of the late W. J. Leinberger is being settled and that his real estate holdings are being divided according to the will filed following his death about eight months ago.

The business of slaughtering is still being conducted by Walter J. Leinberger, his nephew, to whom he deeded one-half of the property now occupied by the slaughter house.

The constant and enduring friendship that existed between W. J. Leinberger and Gus Goldberg was never ended until death parted them.

The West Sac parks department is accepting registration for the Teen Basketball League, open to boys and girls age 13-17. League begins March 26; a player draft will be held March 12 at Golden State (12:30 for boys, 1:30 for girls). Register online at www.ci.west-sacramento.ca.us or visit the department at 1110 West Capitol Avenue. $45 per player before March 9 and $55 thereafter. Call 617-4620 for information.

Name a park

The City of West Sacramento is accepting nominations for names of new local parks slated for development. The nominations will be winnowed into a list by the city's parks and community services commission. A nomination form is available at the parks and recreation department, and must be returned by Feb. 18. Call 617-4620 or visit www.ci.west-sacramento.ca.us, click on "parks and recreation," then click on "Facility Naming Nomination Form" under "highlights."

Adult softball

The city parks department invites registration for men's, women's and co-ed adult softball league, which begins April 4 at Bryte Park. $375 per team before March 4 and $385 afterwards. Ten games plus playoffs. Visit www.ci.west-sacramento.ca.us or the parks department to register. For more information, call 617-4620.
